

San José del Cabo, one of the Jesuit missions in Baja California: To achieve self-sufficiency, the missionaries were expected to establish agriculture to feed themselves and their Indian acolytes. Dating from the 1760s, this and the scenes on the pages that follow were illustrated by the Jesuit missionary Ignacio Tirsch.

A Representation of the SUGAR - CANE and the Art of Making Sugar.

Engraved for the Universal Magazine according to Act of Parliament, 1749, by J. Kneen at G. Knos (Am. sigs) / Prints Church / Inv. London

An illustration showing the manufacture of sugar from raw sugar cane. The image may represent a scene in the West Indies, although the machinery and techniques are applicable to colonial sugar plantations in the Caribbean, South America and the Portuguese islands in the Atlantic and West Africa. (From Universal Magazine, London, 1749, Library of Congress collection)
<https://www.worldhistory.org/image/14118/colonial-sugar-cane-manufacturing/>

Rice culture on the Ogeechee, near Savannah, Georgia / Sketched by A.R. Waud.

<https://www.loc.gov/resource/ds.07365/>

Map of sugar plantations along the Mississippi between New Orleans and Baton Rouge at Laura Plantation.

HOEING RICE.

Weeding Rice Field, U.S. South, 19th century. Source: Charles C. Coffin, Building the Nation (New York, 1883), p. 76. Courtesy of Jerome S. Handler and Michael L. Tuite Jr., "The Atlantic Slave Trade and Slave Life in the Americas: A Visual Record," produced by the Digital Media Lab at the University of Virginia Library and the Virginia Foundation for the Humanities. Online at <http://hitchcock.itc.virginia.edu/Slavery/>.

<https://www.unf.edu/floridahistoryonline/Plantations/images/Rice5Hoeing-lg.jpg>

Historical postcard of Indonesia, c. 1900.

FED. MALAY STAT. 33

ORIG. PHOTO KLEINGRUBER, MEDAN SUMATRA

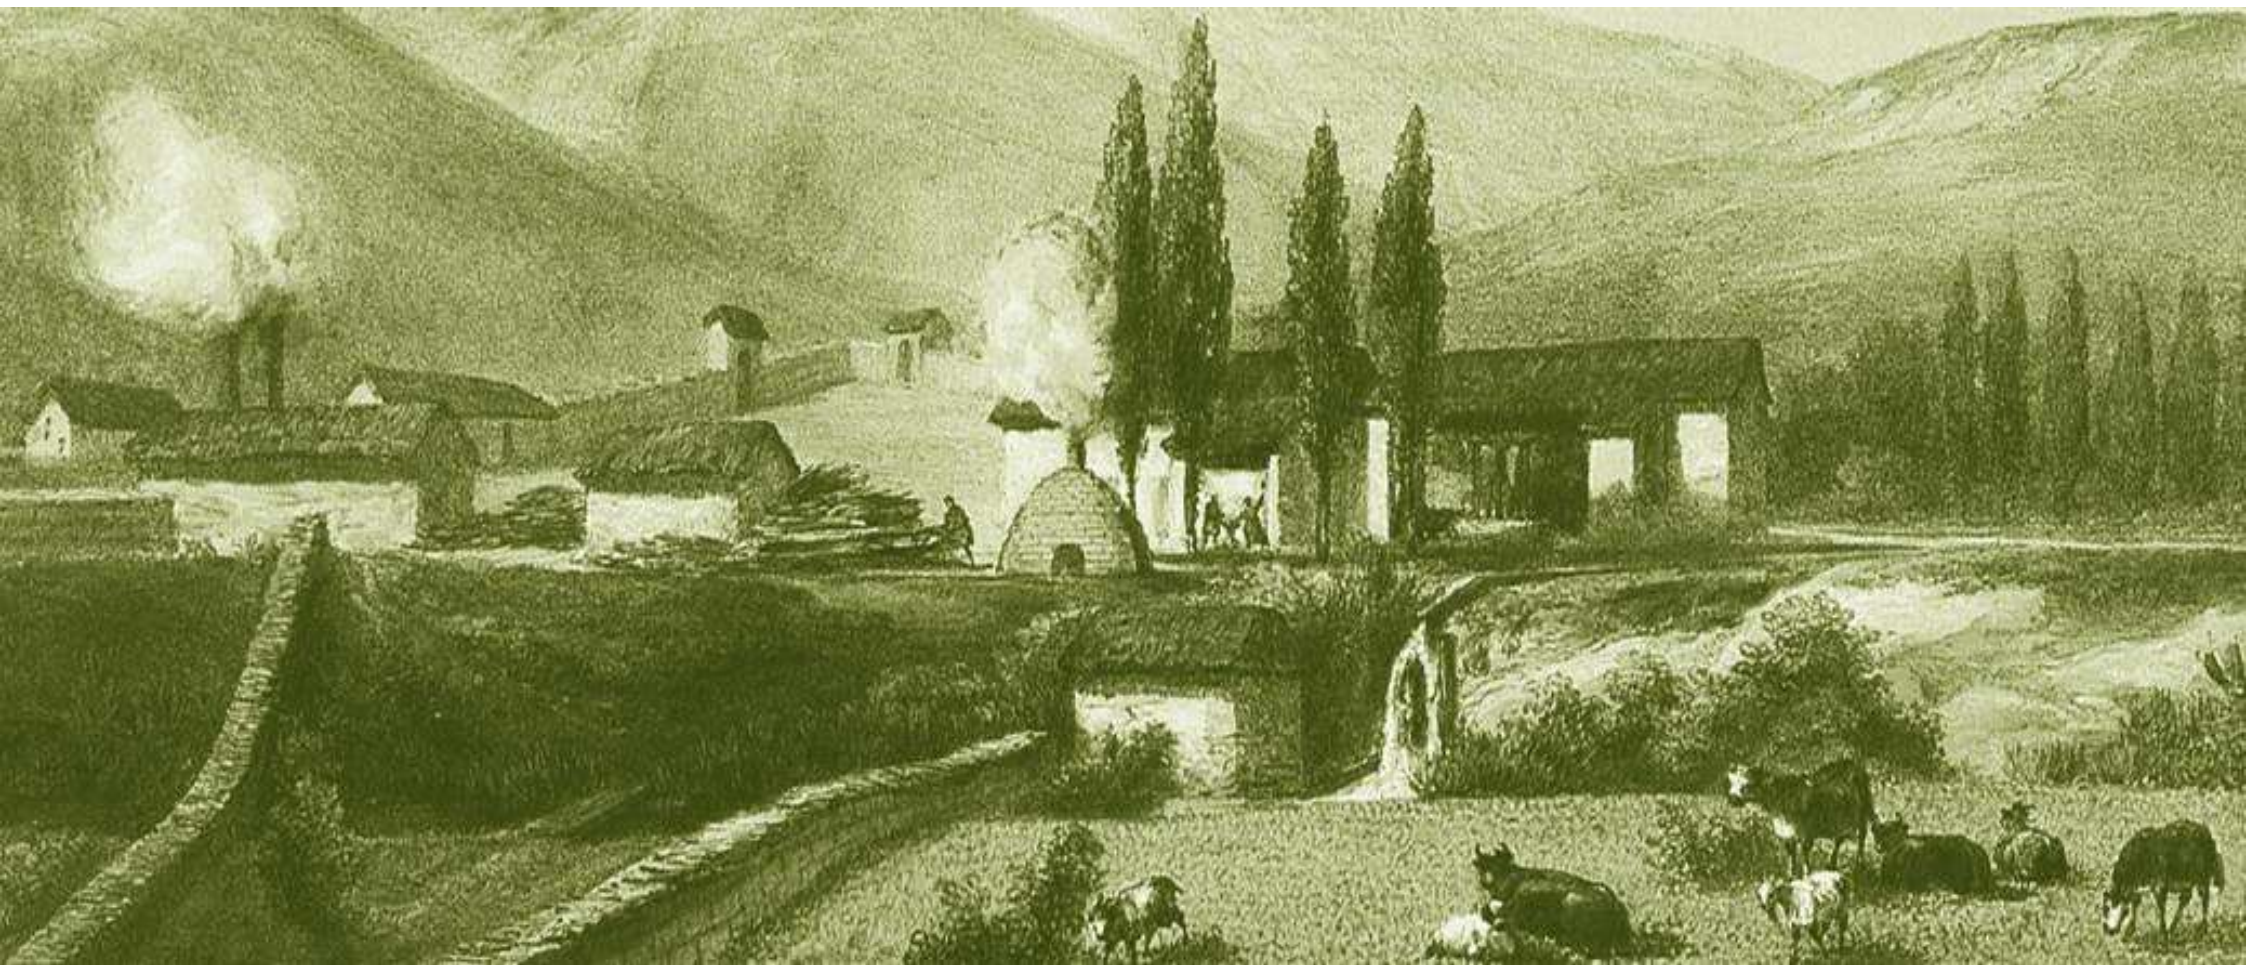

SUGAR PLANTATION

GRAVURE OBRNETTER

African American Slaves Harvesting Cane on a Sugar Plantation

Hacienda en América.

A cotton plantation on the Mississippi
Prints and Photographs Division. Library of Congress Online Catalog.

A COTTON PLANTATION ON THE MISSISSIPPI.

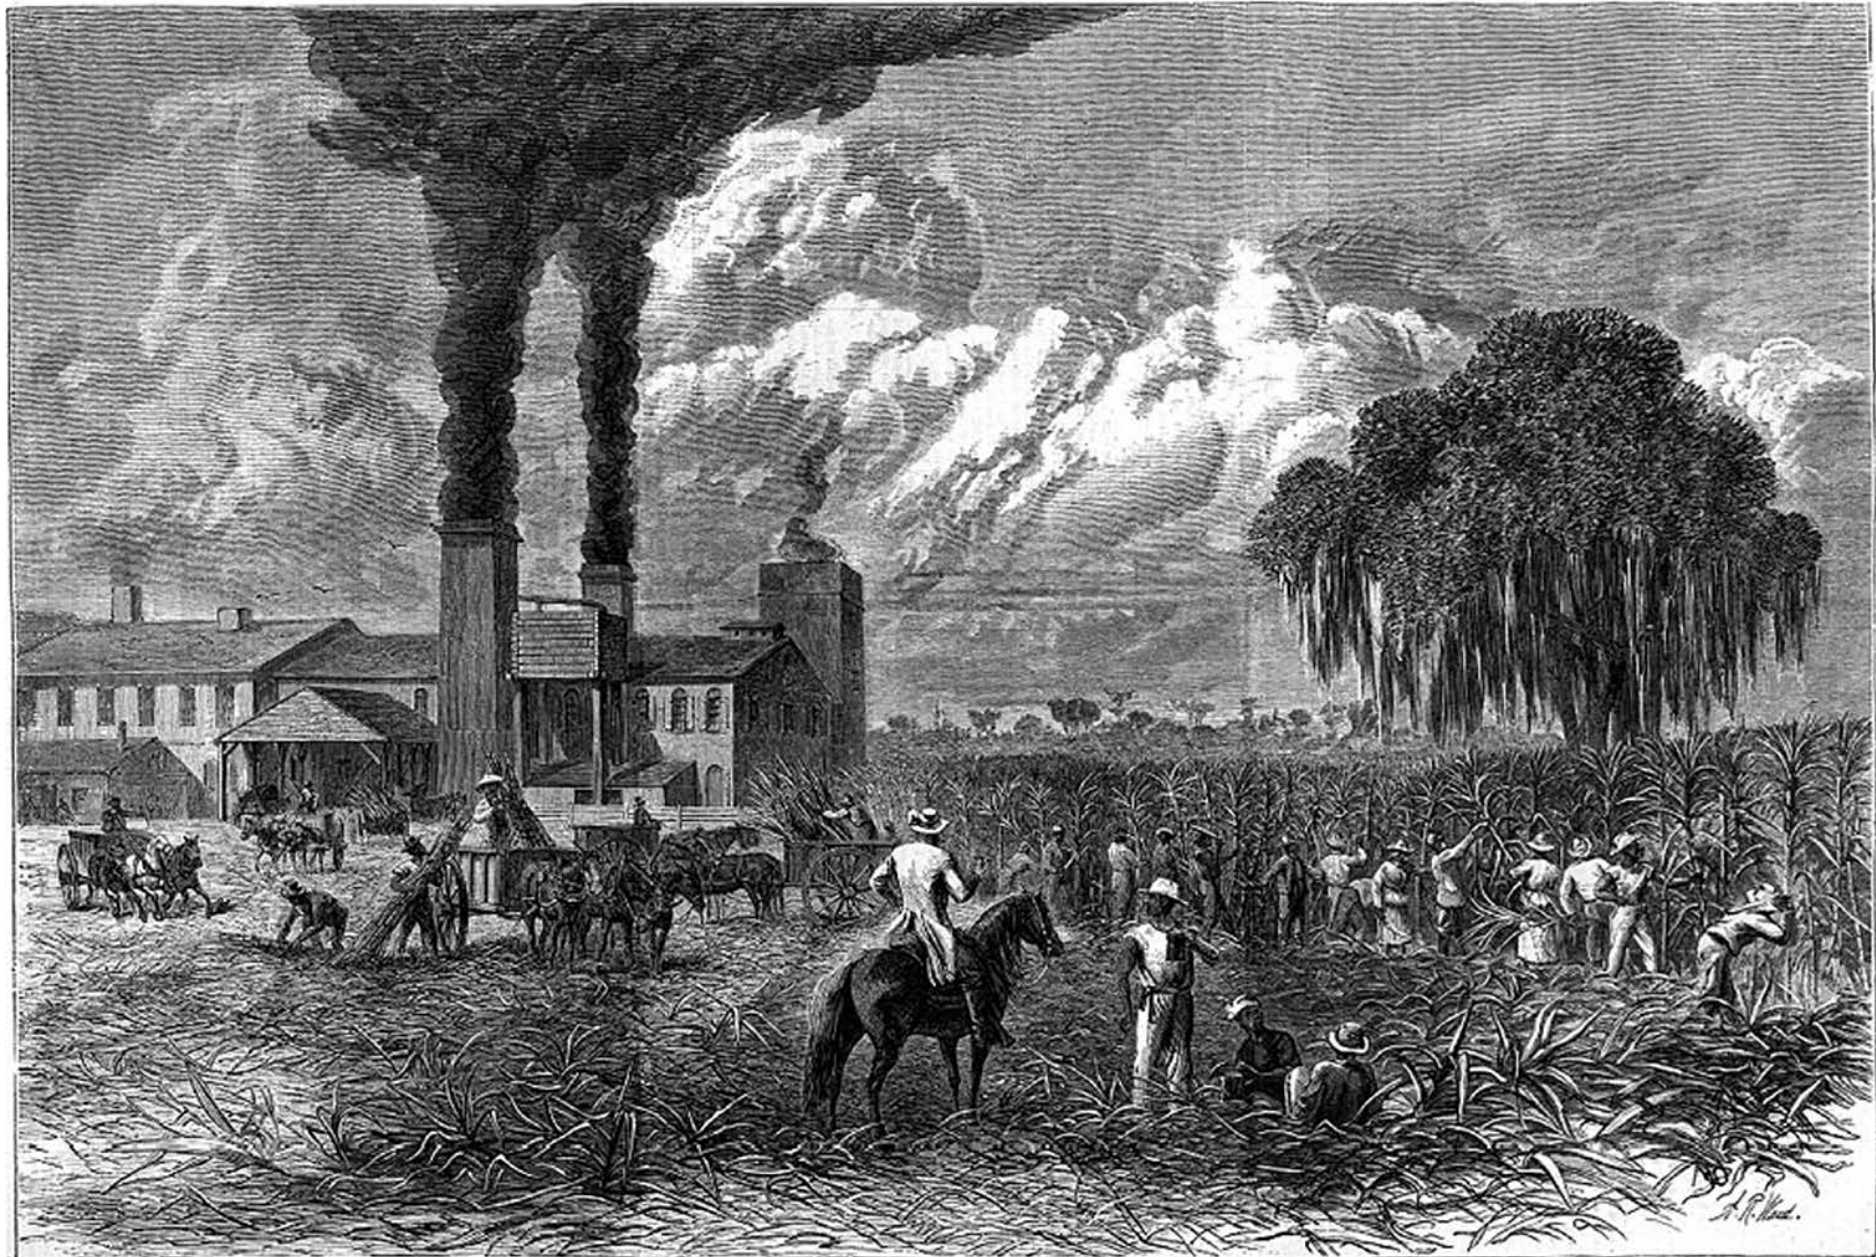

Sugar Plantation Workers, Jamaica, c1935.

Jean-Baptiste du Tertre, The Sugar Mill, 1667-1671, Bibliothèque Nationale de France.
 Jean-Baptiste du Tertre, Histoire générale des Antilles habitées par les Français, vol. 2, p. 1222. Paris: T. Lolly, 1667..

“The Sugar Harvest in Louisiana” was created by Alfred Rudolph Waud in 1875 for Harper’s Weekly (A Journal of Civilization).
Prints and Photographs Division. Library of Congress Online Catalog.

THE SUGAR HARVEST IN LOUISIANA.—DRAWN BY A. R. WAUD.—[SEE PAGE 553.]

Sugar-cane plantation, 1876, Londres: Wesleyan Conference Office.

The New York Public Library Digital Collections

